TREATY BETWEEN SPAIN AND MOROCCO. A treaty of peace, commerce, fishery, and navigation has been concluded between his Catholic Majetty and the Emperor of Morocco at Mequinez. It is a very curious treaty, and is looked upon in Spain as one step towards the civilization of Africa.

The difference of religious opinions is no longer made n obstacle with the Mahometans; and the latter, who offered to Christians no other alternative than flavery or the fword, speak in this treaty of their wishes to live i friendship, good understanding, and harmony with all Christian Powers. In the 13th article an Emperor of Morocco declares that he defires the odious name of flavery may be effaced from the memory of man.

This treaty regulates four different objects :-1. The conditions upon which peace shall continue to exist between the two nations.

2. The regulations relative to the reciprocal commerce between them.

3. The navigation. 4. The fishery.
We shall not idilate upon the two last articles further than to fay, that the Spaniards and the inhabitants of Canaries are permitted to fish in the seas to the north of St Croix in Barbary.

The 19th article is a step towards the abolition of privateering. The Morocco failors and effects taken on board thips at war with Spain, are to be be reftored without ransom, by the Spaniards. The same is to be done by the subjects of Morocco. Morocco ships and effects captured by a power at war with the Emperor are not to be fold in the ports of Spain. This condition is also reciprocal.

Christian flaves, of any nation whatever, who, having escaped from captivity, shall seek an asylum on board Spanish ships, or in the forts which his Catholic Maefty has on the coast of Africa, shall not be reclaim ed by their masters.

The articles 26 to 35 regulate the cultom, duties &c. The 30th article declares that the company of the Cinco-Gremios of Madrid shall continue to enjoy the exclusive privilege of drawing corn from Morocco, by the port of Darbeyda.

An article states, that, in case of a rupture between the two Powers, the prisoners shall not be treated or confidered as flaves; but they shall be exchanged as those of European nations are.

EDINBURGH-NOVE MBER 14. 44444 ********

The homeward-bound Lifbon and Oporto fleet is Monday a report obtained in London, that the uni d French and Spanish fleets have put to fea from Breft harbour, having on board a great number of troops, of which it is faid BUONAPARTE has the command. No intelligence having been received for fome time from France, has also given fanction to a rumour that an embargo has been laid in all the Republican ports, in or der to disguise the designs of the Directory .- No information to the above effect we are, however, affored, bad arrived at the Admiralty on Monday .- For ourfelves, we do not confider it possible for a fleet of heavy ships to put to fea from Brest with the wind in the quarter from whence it has blown for fome weeks past. Lord BRIDPORT will fail immediately on its becoming more favourable.

We formerly stated, that a descent is meditated upon fome part of the French coast, in which the Russia and Dutch loyalists will be employed: the troops to rendezvous at Guernfey and Jerfey.—Certain it is, this a vast quantity of ordnance and stores is getting ready for embarkation at Woolwich; and, we are told, the the officers who lately returned from Holland have only leave of abfence from week to week.

It is now reported, that the expedition has for ited ject an important stroke against the whole remaining rine force of the enemy.—A plan having been subted to Government of a quite new character, and was at least promises a favourable iffue.

According to all the accounts from France, the Di rectory assume more exterior shew in all public co cerns than was ever adopted by the rightful monards of that country. A very intelligent observer, whose cently came from that country, fays, that the Directory and their fuite, political and perfonal, fuggeft se idea of a numerous train of opera dancers about to commence a grand ballet. One of the arts by which the Directory succeed in amusing the mass of the perple in the metropolisis by mufic. Conceiving that mefic possesses a greater power over the passions, and tends to folten the character of a people, the French usurpers have collected some of the best performer from all parts of Europe. These performers are obli ged to play at certain periods during every day, but they are not permitted to stop in any particular place, and are obliged to parade through the streets. Thus on mass of people assemble in one spot, but a kind of sauntering negligence prevails, and the amusement constantly offered prevents them from thinking feriously of goitical matters, except when taxes are fcriptions are on foot.

The men in general affect a rough simplicity in their dress, but the women are all finery in what covering they wear, for in fact they are half-naked, according to the new philosophy, which condemns all antiquated notions of decency. Luxury in eating, among those who can afford it, is carried on to the most voluptuou excess. The lower orders, however, are in lamentable want of common necessaries. The English nation is by no means disliked by the bulk of the people, though they are at war with us, and they cannot bear the Spa niards, though they are their allies. Nothing can give an adequate idea of the relaxation of moral principle which distinguishes the whole of the people. Matri mony, considered merely as a civil compact, is held it little regard, and, upon the whole, if a dereliction of all moral habits, a devotion to dishipation, a fense of the univerfal uncertainty of life and property, and hopeless relignation to an overbearing tyranny, can be supposed to render a nation prosperous and flourishings France is likely to hold its head above every other country in Europe.

At present there is a perfect vacancy in the theatre politics. The public eye, however, is intenfely fixed upon the Combined Fleet in Brest harbour, which is certainly intended foon to be fent to fea.

The merchants of Liverpool have established a fund for the support of commercial credit at the present & ventful period.

A proclamation has been iffued by the Lord Lieute nant of Ireland, prohibiting the exportation of potatoes.

We are happy to acquaint the Public, that Colonel FERRIER, with the Officers, Non-commissioned Officers and Privates, of the Edinburgh Recruiting Diffrict, at their parade yesterday, handsomely contributed one sult day's pay towards the relief of the Widows and Orphans of the killed and wounded of the British Army in Holland.

The Court of Session met on Tuesday. Previous to last vacation the business was brought so far up, that at present the roll of causes is shorter than has been known upon any former occasion.

The intended institution of a Public Kitchen rethe interest interest of a runner kitchen receives universal approbation, which gives reason to hope, that it will meet with due support. On Tuesday the Incorporation of Mary's Chapel, resolved to give it their hearty affiltance individually, though, as an inporation, they found themfelves precluded from appropriating any of their funds towards its support. This incorporation has likewise resolved to encrease the allowance to their poor members during the winter, when all the necessaries of life must be extravagantly high -We hope other public bodies will take the hint.

Yesterday forenoon a bullock became very furious in the Grafs-market, and ran off from the herd. He was purfued through feveral ffreets of the city, and at last feized near the Tron-Church, where he was killed. Fortunately no person was hurt, although he ran through many public streets with great violence.

It is melancholy to observe that the price of wheat in the Lundon market, on Monday last, advanced 10s.

As the fame of the improved mode of printing at Paris is fpreading (and indeed we must own is deservedly spreading) through Europe, it is fatisfactory justice to declare the claim of our country to the invention.

So long ago as the year 1744, there was a SALLUST printed at Edinburgh, not in the usual mode of fingle letters, in moveable types, &c. but with an apparatus of letter formed, as it were, with copper-plates, whole pages at once. The printer was Mr WILLIAM Gen, working goldsmith in Edinburgh.

The title, substantially, as above mentioned, is as

What other pains were taken by our countryman Gen to be correct, may be imagined from this fingle fact—that, as each page was ftruck off, it was posted at the University doors, with a notice, that whoever could find an error, and correct it, should have a reward-part of the reward was a gratuitous copy of the

JUSTICES OF PEACE.

Yesterday, at a meeting of the Justices of Peace for this county, there was submitted to them applications by the journeymen earpenters and boat builders in Leith, for advancing their wages. The Justices granted an advance in the following proportions, viz. FORGERY.

Of late the crime of forgery has become very frequent, although the punishment is death, and the Royal mercy was never known to extend to that crime thich is one of the most dangerous to fociety, and it is feldom but the culprits are detected.

Among the forgeries that have lately appeared, the BERWICK FIVE POUND note, is most clumbly done. That on Meffrs BAKER, LORRAIN, AND Co. Newcaftle Twenty Shillings Note, is very difficult to discover.
The PERTH FIVE SHILLING NOTES are very evident to every person who will look at them carefully, being very bad paper, and ill executed.

The forgery on the ABERDEEN BANK FIVE SHILL

LING NOTES, is upon their own paper, which must have been stolen; but the Cashier's name and the numbers are fo ill written, that it must evidently appear to be a fraud. It becomes the interest and duty of every person to endeavour to detect these dangerous frauds, and to examine carefully all bank notes as they are re-

PROVISION FOR THE POOR.

The following circular letter of the truly benevolent and patriotic Lord Bishop of DURHAM will not be unacceptable to our readers. It would have appeared in our paper of Monday laft, but was prevented by other temporary matter.

our paper of Monday laft, but was prevented by other temporary matter.

October 30, 1799.

A long series of wet and unseasonable weather has greatly affected the crops of corn this year, particularly in the northern counties, and in some other parts of England, where the coldiness of the soil, and the humidity of the atmosphere are unfavourable for the ripening of wheat. I therefore conceive it to be the duty of the other classes of society in this kingdom to take speedy and effectual measures for diminishing and preventing, as far as lies in their power, the distress which the poor might otherwise be subjected to in the course of the ensuing winter, from the scarcity and consequent high price of a very material article of life to all; but especially to them.—Far from apprehending any alarm or inconvenience from the adoption of proper measures to alleviate this impending evil, it appears to me, that the best method of preventing anxiety, and of quieting the minds of the poor, will be for the rest of their fellow subjects to take immediate steps for their relief. When the cottager finds the charitable and Christian care of his more opulent neighbours anticipating his wants and providing for his comforts, it is impossible but his apprehensions must be lessened, at the same time that his good habits and orderly dispositions will be augmented.

In addressing you on this subject, I think it necessary to mention a common error with regard to the relief of the poor in times of scarcity, and to state to you in strong and unqualified language, that whenever the produce of a cointry, and the quantity of food are insufficient for all the inhabitants, nothing less than an additional supply of food from abroad or an improved economy in the use and application of it can give substantial relief. We deceive ourselves; and rather do prejudice than afford assistance to the general countion of the poor, by attempting to relieve them in any other way. There is nothing more benevolent in intention, more plausible in theory, or more the other calculated, when properly prepared, to correct the bad consequences which attend the use of corn grown in a wet season.

In the improved management of those means of subsistence which Providence hath bestowed upon us, much is to be done for the well-being and increased comfort of the poor; and in this as in every thing 'else, a large portion of the operative effect of precept and exhortation will depend upon the efficacy of example. The indiscriminate praise of hospitality and generosity is frequently given to wasteful habits in the houses of the opulent: In plentiful seasons, such unmerited commendations may pass unnoticed and uncensured; but during periods of scarcity, when the pressure of distress bears heavy on the needy and the destitute, I would request all the other orders of society to consider how much signey they may do to their necessitous brethern by actual waste, and by pernicious example. I would request them to consider, that when the means of subsistence are barely adequate to the demands of population, every portion of food that is wasted within their houses occasions the privation of the support of life to one at least of their fellow-creatures.

It is no this principle that I carnestly recommend in private houses, and also in all public establishments, the economy of food, particularly in the use of wheat, which the habits of the English cuttger have now made so necessary an article of hife. Other individuals, and those who are maintained in public establishments, do, in general, possess more variety, and a greater proportion of nourishing food than the cottager; and can therefore with more facility, and a less self-denial, adopt the use of other substitutes for wheat, thou; and their example will be of incalculable service in reconciling the cottager to that which is at present essential to his own welfare.

The application of the true principles of relief, the forming and arranging of the necessary measures for the support and comforts of the poor in the County-Palatine of Durham ment than could have been anorosed as four times the expenditure; and at the same time has operated generally to diminish the prejudicial effects of scarcity.

An account of some of these charities, and of the manner in which they have been conducted, may be found in the first volume of Reports of the Society for bettering the condition and increasing the comforts of the poor, and in a cheap publication of the same Society, intituled, "Information for Overseers," while he wish a very to general circulation. In the last of or the same Society, intituled, "Information for Overseers," published with a view to general circulation. In the last of these are contained some experimental observations on rice, which is a very useful and nutritive substitute for flour, and may be so prepared as to act as a preserved. these are contained some experimental observations on rice, which is a very useful and nutritive substitute for flour, and may be so prepared as to act as a preservative against those putrid and epidemical disorders which are always to be apprehended from the inferior quality of corn and potatoes in a wet and unfavourable season. Difficulties must ever be expected to attend the introduction of new modes of diet among any set of men; but if those who have country residences and possess the later to account of the production of th of men; but it those who have country residences and possess liberality, information, and benevolence, which I am persuaded are the characteristics of the gentlemen of the County Palatine of Durham, will do what a nobleman is doing in the county of Warwick—dress these articles for their own table, supply their neighbours with a part of them, and then give them an account of the mode of preparation and expense, I am confident there will be little difficulty in the gradual introduction of them. duction of them.

In order to bring forward the consideration of the subject,
I conceive that it will be proper that a meeting should be had of those who may find it not inconvenient to attend, " for the of those who may find it not inconvenient to attend, " for the purpose of adopting such measures as may be most for the real benefit of the poor in general, and may tend to diminish the scarcity, and keep down the price of provisions." And that a general Committee should be elected for considering the general objects; subscriptions opened and local committees formed for the different districts, leaving the mode of rehef to be afterwards arranged and applied according to the mature and urgency of the case.

Having so far extended my observations upon this most interesting subject, I have only to add my firm conviction, that in this, as in every other dispensation of providence, if we are not unmindful and neglectful of our own duty, we shall find every thing working for our good; and this temporary scarcity may eventually be the instrument of giving improved means of life, and increased comfort to a very munerous and deserving class eventually be the instrument of giving improved means of life, and increased comfort to a very immerous and deserving class of our fellow creatures and fellow subjects; and of disseminating mutual good will and esteem; pure and active Christian charity, among all the members of society.

and Town Council, and a Gosmittee of the Inh bilitants.

SUBSCRIPTION TO A PUBLIC KITCHEN,
FOR THE POOR OF THE CITY AND SUBCRES.

WHILE the high price of provisions, and the rigours of winter are multiplying and embittering the unavoidable distresses of the poor, it has been suggested, that the establishment of a Public Kitchen, where they might be supplied with a wholesome and substantial meat broth, at a cheap rate, would be attended, as a partial relief to them, with most beneficial effects. Similar establishments have been formed, both on the Continent and in England, with the happies success; and it is reasonable to believe, that one may be formed here without risk of failure. For we have not merely the assurance, from the experience of others, that the plan is practicable, but we have the advantage also of acquaintance with the rules which they have so prosperously followed.

But as the extent to which the benefits of the projected institution can be carried, must depend on the extent of the money raised, it is earnestly requested, that those who intend to subscribe, may come forward immediately, in order that the Gentlemen who have undertaken the superintendance, may be able to regulate their arrangements according to the funda—Contributions in Coals and Vegetables, and other articles required for the consumption of the Kitchen, will, at all times, be acceptable; but, in order to render the pecuniary subscription as little bardensome as possible, (when there must be, during the ensuing winter, many other calls on the affluent for charitable contributions,) and also more general, it is proposed, that Corporations shall not subscribe a higher sum than five Gunness, and individuals than One Guines.

Mess. William Fettes, Archibald Menzies, Bailies

Subscription Papers are lodged with the Members of the Committee, and in the different Banks, Bankers, and Booksellers Shops, and Coffechouses, and also at the Merchants Hall, where attendance will be given from 12 to 3 o'clock on and after Friday next.

N. B.—As soon, as the Public Kitchen commences the distribution of Soup, an account of the Institution, and its management, will be published, both for the satisfaction of the Subscribers, and the information of the capuity. It is hoped, that in the course of the winter, a Public Kitchen will be erected in every Town and populous Village of Scotland; for it is beyond denied true, that is no other way for nich extensive and useful relief be afforded at a small as expense, and with so little honered of being abused by those who receive it.

GILCHRIST & CQ. have this day received, from the offiadmired article of WINTER DRESS.

It is lined with the finest Fur, upon a principle charely new, which gives it the double advantage of being qually warm at can be folded and carried in the pocket. They would recommend it to their friends to muske early application, as they have only a few dozens for sale; and they are to be had nowhere else in Scotland.
